

BUSINESS ADVICE CLOSE TO HOME

I understand that your business and your home can be one and the same, so some of the major decisions that you face can be even more challenging because they are so interlinked. Whether buying, selling, letting your land and property, or looking to create rights over it, I will act in your best interests, offering practical and commercially sound legal advice that helps protect your way of life.

I grew up on a farm so I understand the issues that affect farmers and their families. I'm a member of the Gloucestershire committee for the Royal Agricultural Benevolent Institution (RABI) and a Fellow of the Agricultural Law Association. I have a personal interest in seeing the rural economy succeed and grow, and as a valued client who is part of that, I will guide you as your trusted advisor through the tough decisions you face.

I act for many farmers, agricultural businesses and landed estates and can support you with:

- Buying and selling farms, land and rural property
- Negotiating agricultural tenancies and other arrangements
- Drafting and negotiating deeds of easement: creating rights over land
- Negotiating option agreements for the sale of development land
- Securing lending against your land or property.

Whatever your agricultural property challenge, I'm here to advise.
